DIGITAL LIBRARY OF AEGEUS

Terms of use

- The Digital Library of Aegeus includes a collection of publications on Aegean prehistoric archeology, including articles, books, PhDs and journals. It is intended for personal and academic use of the registered members of Aegeus.
- The digital library is only accessible to registered members of Aegeus, who access the site using their passwords. Aegeus members are kindly requested to keep their passwords secure and not to share them with others.
- Aegeus members have the right to post their own publications. Publications by other authors may be forwarded to Aegeus, who will decide whether to include them in the library.
- Members who post their own publications in the library automatically provide their consent for the other members of Aegeus to use them freely for personal and academic use, without requiring further permission from the author.
- Any reference to a publication in the digital library is required to be accurate, without distorting its content, and the source fully cited.
- Copyrighted publications are prohibited from being printed in their entirety, distributed or posted on the internet without the prior written consent of the author and the publisher.
- If a member donates an electronic publication, Aegeus has the right to distribute it to those members who are interested in acquiring it.
- Publications that have been posted on the digital library will remain there for the benefit of all other members, even after the person who posted it is no longer a member of Aegeus.

Ways to post a publication

There are three ways to post a publication to the digital library:

- 1. Members can upload the publication as a pdf file. The maximum allowable file size is 50 MB.
- 2. If a publication has already been uploaded on the internet and is freely available on other websites, then the member can enter the link in the corresponding field. This has the added advantage of not requiring the publication to be stored on Aegeus' website.
- 3. If the publication cannot be uploaded to the digital library because of its size (>50MB), or the publisher does not allow it, then the details can be entered on the website and the actual publication sent using an alternative method, such as email or other file transfer applications, such as WeTransfer.

If you find a mistake in the library, or a link to a publication that no longer works, please notify Aegeus at aegeussociety@gmail.com.
