

THE NEW YORK AEGEAN BRONZE AGE COLLOQUIUM

Tuesday
29 October 2024
12:00 pm EDT

Online
Zoom
Meeting

OURANIA KOUKA

Department of History and Archaeology, Archaeological Research Unit, University of Cyprus

Emerging Complexity in Prehistoric Samos and Beyond

The East Aegean islands and the littoral of western Anatolia display a geographically marginal zone characterized by continuous movement of peoples, raw materials, and technological innovations that resulted in local or regional economic and social phenomena well attested in the third millennium BCE. Based on rich data sets from older and particularly from recent archaeological discoveries and interdisciplinary approaches of data from Samos Island and western Anatolia, this lecture will debate the emergence and development of cultural complexity in this part of the Aegean from the Chalcolithic through the Middle Bronze Age (4500–1700 BCE) and discuss this within the palimpsest of the prehistoric Aegean.

To register, please visit NYABAC.tumblr.com.